SPONSOR FOR SOUTH.

MISS CORINNE TEBAUT.

Miss Corinne Tebault, of New Orleans, was elected by General Stephen D. Lee, Grand Commander of the United Confederate Veterans, and as such will preside as a social queen at the grand reunion at Nashville.

She is a charming and vivacious blonde with queenly carriage and exquisitely graceful. She is descended from the Huguenots and Puritans, and both families have furnished soldiers and statesmen to the nation, as well as to the Confederate States. Thus Miss Tebault is the fortunate possessor of the vivacity of the French, mingled with the stability of purpose and accuracy of judgment of the English, and both combined make her a representative American of the noblest type. Miss Tebault is an acknowledged belle, and has been often honored as Sponsor and Maid of Honor by Department and Division Commanders on previous occasions by both the United Confederate Veterans and the Sons of Veterans.

Miss Tebault's ancestors have distinguished records in the armies of France, in our own Revolutionary War, in the settlement of America, in our Indian wars and in the Confederate Army, and in the late war with Spain her brother, Dr. Hamilton Tebault, organized under General Wood the famous hospital at San Fernando, and was its commanding medical officer. Her other brother, Captain Grantland Tebault, a member of Beauregard Camp, Sons of Veterans, was appointed by General Gordon as one of his aides at the New Orleans Reunion, and served with marked ability on the committee in charge of sponsors and social functions.

Miss Tebault, being thus descended from a line of warriors and statesmen, is entitled to all the honors to be conferred by associations which commemorate these great epochs in the history of our country and which give her a record of which few living can boast. Her ancestors and immediate family have participated in six wars—the French Revolution, our Revolutionary War, Indian Wars, War of 1812, Confederate War and War with Spain.

Miss Tebault is the daughter of Dr. C. H. Tebault, Surgeon General of the United Confederate Veterans, who served on General Gordon's staff, and is now serving on General Lee's staff, with the rank of Brigadier General. He was surgeon in the army of Tennessee throughout the entire war, was surgeon of Twenty-first Louisiana Regiment, and later of the Tenth South Carolina, Maine-gault's Regiment. Since the war Dr. Tebault has filled many responsible positions in the State of Louisiana. He shouldered a musket in defense of the people's rights on the celebrated 14th September, which emancipated Louisiana. He was one of the professors at the Charity Hospital Medical College, health officer of the city of New Orleans, and has served the State of Louisiana and city of New Orleans in a number of other capacities, among them chairman of the Committee on Health, Quarantine and State Medicine, and was also one of the Veteran's Committee which secured pensions to the old veterans in the Constitutional Convention of 1888, of which he was a member for the parish of Orleans. He was also one of the very earliest, most active and prominent members of Confederate Camp, No. 2, Army of Tennessee, U. C. V's. Dr. Tebault's distinguished record as surgeon in the Confederate States Army is fully mentioned in the life of General Beauregard, written by Joe Roman. Miss Tebault's maternal ancestor, Baron Tebault, who left valuable memoirs, was General-in-chief of the French Army just before Napoleon's time. Her paternal great grandfather, Christopher Hall, of Norfolk, Va., was in the Revolutionary War, and was a warm friend of General Lafayette. When he was entertained by Hon. Christopher Hall, who was then in the Virginia Legislature. The next year the Hon. Christopher Hall made a tour of Europe in 1805, when he was entertained by General Lafayette at his favorite estate, "LaGrange" in France, and Lafayette presented him when he left France with views of "LaGrange." Miss Tebault's father now has in his possession the north view. Colonel Hall was also an officer in the Indian Wars. Miss Tebault's paternal grandfather, Major E. J. Tebault, was a banker and planter, being president of the famous Bank of Louisiana just prior to the war.

Miss Tebault's maternal revolutionary ancestor was Governor William Bradford, the first Governor of Massachusetts. Her maternal great-grandfather, the Hon. Senon Grantland represented Georgia in the Legislature and in Congress. He founded the first newspaper in middle Georgia, the Southern Recorder, and was also one of the founders of the Whig party in Georgia, and one of the wealthiest men in Georgia. Her maternal grandfather, the Hon. D. J. Bailey, of Griffin, Ga., was colonel of the Thirtieth Georgia Regiment in the Army of Tennessee, and he also served during the Indian war the entire time the country was engaged in battling with the Seminoles and Creeks, and was promoted to a captaincy. Colonel Bailey served in the Georgia House of Representatives, and as President of the Senate, and for several terms in the United States Congress. At the time of his death he was the oldest congressman in Georgia, and here occurred a remarkable incident in the history of the country. Colonel Bailey, and his father-in-law, the Hon. Senon Grantland, both in Congress at the same time, from the same State, on a Whig and the other a Democrat.

Miss Tebault had one great-uncle killed under General Jackson at New Orleans. On her father's side and through her Huguenot ancestry she is related to the Handeville and Rutledge families of South Carolina.

With these qualities Miss Tebault will prove a most charming sponsor, being liked and loved by the young and old for her manners and address as well as esteemed for her high order of intelligence.

FREDERICKSBURG AFFAIRS.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)

FREDERICKSBURG, VA., April 30.—The young people here, and especially those connected with Fredericksburg College and their friends, were disappointed in not seeing the match game between the teams of Randolph-Macon and Fredericksburg College scheduled for Thursday evening here, but declared off on account of bad weather. An interesting game is expected next Monday evening between the Fredericksburg College team and Brown's University School.

REINACH.

some one artist of our own work-rooms, and don't say this boastfully. BEEN THE ADMIRED HATS of Richmond this season.

THE NEW MILLINERY STORE, 427 EAST BROAD STREET, Next to Fourqurean, Temple & Co.

LET US REMIND YOU, the styles in millinery we are showing are always a little in advance of the season's showing; you could not go amiss here, where the selection is not only the largest, but greater care is taken to have this stock, at all times, as near perfection as the word implies.

Originality dominates in this store. INDIVIDUALITY THE KEY WORD. Why not wear a hat from the Reinach establishment; they cost no more than shown elsewhere; on the contrary, the hat you buy is at all times a masterpiece of engagements, it will be impracticable for me to attempt to canvass the two cities and six counties which compose the district.

I cannot do so except by neglecting the important duties which now devolve upon me, and these duties I will neglect as long as I remain in office. Several of my professional brethren have kindly offered to aid me in the discharge of these official duties, and to them I return my sincere thanks, but I have never thought it right to shift to others the duties and responsibilities which the people have entrusted to me and which I have undertaken to discharge.

Under these circumstances I respectfully make known my well considered purpose and conclusion not to be a candidate for nomination as Representative in Congress at the next primary election.

So the many friends who have pledged me their support I return my warmest thanks, and those who have been so earnest and active in my behalf will be remembered with gratitude all my life. In this connection I desire also to say that I will not be a candidate for reelection to the office of Commonwealth's Attorney. The people of Richmond have honored me with four terms, and three of these have been by unanimous election. For this evidence of their favor I can never cease to be grateful. For nearly eight years I have devoted all of my time to the duties of the office, and I know that I have filled the position at a pecuniary sacrifice to myself. I have never tried to make money, but recognize now the necessity of endeavoring to accumulate sufficient funds to meet the moderate demands of modest living when I shall have reached the evening of life.

At the expiration of my present term I expect to resume the general practice of law, but although I shall retire to "private station," which is "the post of honor," I never expect to be a drone in the hive. I could not be, or cease to take an active interest in public affairs. The moral well being of the people among whom I have lived all my life, and the material upbuilding and prosperity of my State and city will always enlist my interest and engage my energies.
